LETTER FROM BOSTON

JENNIE COLLINS AND "BOFFIN'S BOWER"—HER ORIGINAL IDEAS OF CHARITY—PRACTICAL AID FOR WORKING GIRLS.

"BOFFIN'S BOWER," Boston, Dec 11 1872

To the Editor of the Whig & Courier

A paragraph which appeared in one of your issues having been copied in Western papers as far as Nebraska, to the effect that I had received a portion of the Relief Fund with which to carry forward my work, I would like to correct a wrong impression We petitioned for $2,000 of the Chicago Fund, over which so much dispute has taken place, and "A respectful hearing and leave to withdraw" was the result, upon the ground that "if entertained, kindred-institutions would claim a similar boon"

I think Dickens would be highly gratified if he were living at this time to know that Boffin's Bowers had become so numerous, and it surprises me somewhat when I consider how this Institution had its start. It was in this wise The city of Boston sinks from three to four million dollars yearly in what is miscalled "Charity" Between that and its twin brother intemperance, industry and morality are threatened with destruction—Charity is the most dangerous of the two, because it is iron clad with respectability Professional Philanthropists are the scourge of Christendom to day They would not have the human family improved under any circumstance. They go prowling about for what they term "Worthy Poor," and are sure to find plenty of what might be valuable to society if their vital force could be directed in the right way instead of being wasted making themselves "worthy." From three years of the closest scrutiny, I have failed to find "Worthy Poor." New England cannot produce them from the very nature of her enterprise and intelligence She has ignorant poor, wasteful poor, unfortunate poor, selfish, malicious poor, crafty poor, harmless, passive poor, but no "worthy poor" Men, women and children are called upon to fight fierce battles with adversity, in every form, some go down conquered by despair, others triumph gloriously, and are made more strong and valuable from the victory they have achieved—What we need now is a knowledge of the nature of these battles, and how we may reinforce the weak It cannot be accomplished by adventurers enriching themselves upon human woe and inwardly rejoicing over its increase It is an acknowledged fact that those Human menageries, "Charitable Institutions," are made for the managers first, then the inmates are sought far and near until a sufficient number are secured to make a good appearance on visiting days! When that is accomplished, the unfortunates may beg for an admission in vain The doors are closed against them as tight as Noah's Ark was, when it began to sail

Knowing that money was wasted in the aforesaid manner I made a proposition to a few sagacious business men, to the effect that if they would give me the six per cent interest on the dollars they entrusted to incompetent adventurers, I would solve a problem in one year, that would save their wealth, and benefit society at the same time But in order to perfect its work, it must have a name that would exclude the 'Chadbands,' the Gradgrinds, and the "Jellabys" So 'Boffin's Bower' was selected

With less than one thousand dollars the first and second year, I furnished free entertainments, musical and literary, twice a week, maintained a free eating room, and found employment for hundreds of women, and numerous other benefits that cannot be specified Paid the highest price for all work and never made an assessment upon any individual exalted or humble, for any favors obtained, and never appealed to the public for a single cent. Now the "Bower" is in its third year, combining a Work-shop, Hotel, Reading Room, Employment Bureau, and General Exchange for women. The name has been laughed at, but the principles inculcated in Boffin's Bower, are acknowledged by the highest officials, State and National At this moment, the apartments which have so often resounded to harmony and eloquence are made vocal with sewing machines by the sufferers from the fire, and there is another large apartment for entertainments So you see there is more danger in doing too much for humanity than doing too little What is the wisest method, is the question of to day, and not how much shall we lavish in trying to improve the condition of our working people

Respectfully,

JENNIE COLLINS

GLASS YARN.—An ingenious mechanic of Vienna has invented a glass composition which may be made at any time into curled or frizzled yarn. These frizzled threads, we are told, surpass in fineness not only the finest cotton, but even a single cocoon thread, and they appear at the same time almost as soft and elastic as silk lint, and beautiful to the eye. These smooth threads are now woven in textile fabrics, which are made into cushions, carpets, table-cloths, shawls, neckties, cuffs, collars and various other articles, and they may be used for weaving the figures in brocaded silk or velvet. It also possesses a remarkable strength, remains unchanged in light or warmth, and is not altered by moisture or acids. It is stated that with a wheel of the diameter of three yards, one operative is able to spin three thousand yards of glass yarn per minute, all of uniform size and of beautiful quality.

Stephen Pottle, of Montville, recently returned there after an absence of forty-five years. He left his home, in the spring of 1827, when he was twenty-one years of age, became a sailor, and has followed the sea ever since. He wrote some occasionally for three or four years, after which time his friends ceased to hear from him, and he had been considered as dead for the last thirty years or more. On returning he first made himself known to his nephew, J. G. Pottle of Camden. His brother, Joseph of South Montville, did not recognize him, and would not be convinced until he was permitted to examine his scalp, which had been cut when he was a boy.

PROGRESS IN JAPAN.—The Yokohama correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer furnishes several items of intelligence which are worthy of being grouped together as evident tokens of the advance which is being made in Japan First, the railroad ... inaugurated has been so successful that the road from Osaka to Kiobe is being pushed forward, and when completed will open up the richest and most populous district in the Empire. The telegraph lines are to be at once thrown open to public use. The city of Yokohama was for the first time lighted with gas on the 2nd of October, in honor of the Mikado's birthday This is the first use of gas in Japan for lighting streets and houses, and the company furnishing the gas is exclusively Japanese So much for things material

As regards the Government, an elective franchise is about to be established for electing six hundred persons to constitute a Congress to be made up of two houses Last, and most important, as to religious matters In a single province where at the time the change of Government took place, there were six hundred temples only one hundred and thirty now remain the others having been torn down by order of the Government.—These facts do not require comment They go to show that the progress in Japan is steady, and extends in all directions. The young Mikado, now only twenty-one years old has much to look back upon with pride, and forward to with hope, and all well wishers to Japan will unite in the desire that his life may be long spared to carry out and perfect what has been so auspiciously begun It may be that progress in Japan has met with serious and permanent check, as some croakers would have us believe, but such facts as those above quoted seem to make against any such theory

JOHN H. LYNDE, - - PROPRIETOR.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1872.

THE RAILROAD MEETING.

The subject to be considered at the meeting at City Hall this evening is one which directly interests every citizen of Bangor, and we hope there will be a full attendance and such a frank and practical interchange of views as shall subserve the best interests of our city in the present and future. The question of opening direct communication with the business sections of Eastern Maine is a most important one, and with the present determination of our Eastern neighbors to push their railroad through to this point if we desire it, or elsewhere if we repel their overtures, it must be acted upon at once. No narrow or merely individual prejudice should be permitted to influence our course as a community upon a matter so directly affecting the future career of our city. This is a matter in which Bangor's representative men should promptly take a position which they may be willing to remember and to have remembered of them in the years to come.

THE GREELEY WILL CONTEST.

To most people it seemed very strange, immediately following the publication of an article in the Tribune declining, on behalf of the Misses Greeley, any contribution for their benefit, and assuring the public that the orphans would be tenderly cared for, whatever might prove to be the condition of their father's estate, that persons connected with that journal, one of them its publisher and a large stockholder, should appear before the Surrogate to dispute the last will and testament of the man who made the Tribune, and to inform his doubly orphaned daughters that ere they could enjoy the property bequeathed to them by their father, the whole painful history of his sickness and all his business affairs must be dragged before the courts.

The Herald, which was most prompt and generous in its proffer of practical sympathy for the afflicted daughters, is highly indignant at the course pursued by the contestants and likens them to jackals fighting over a dead lion. It contends that Mr. Greeley's sanity when he wrote his last will, Nov. 9th, is abundantly proved by the articles which he wrote for the Tribune at that time, one of which, concerning the South, written on the same day with the will, has since been appro...vingly republished in its own columns. It is known that Mr. Greeley did not abandon the editorial room until three days after writing this will, and then no one suspected any affection of his mind. The Herald says:

> That Mr. Greeley was in full possession of his faculties when he wrote the will there ought to be no doubt. Having weeks in advance a premonition of his fate, and after his wife's death being profoundly anxious concerning his children, it was most natural for Mr. Greeley, knowing that he had recently made several most unsuccessful investments, to bequeath his remaining property unreservedly to the rightful heirs. That he should have implicitly trusted his elder daughter with the control of that moiety belonging to her sister is not strange to any one acquainted with the downright integrity and sense of duty which the young lady has inherited from her parents. Yet, to save herself from misconstruction, Miss Greeley offered to exchange one-half of the legacy to her sister in her own name, provided the counsel, the guardian of her sister felt unwilling to leave all in her hands, an offer which each of them refused.

And how wherein does the will of January 1871, differ from the last? Mr. Greeley bequeaths to his brother a farm lying in the township of Wayne, Pa., desires that one of his Tribune shares shall be sold to the highest bidder for the benefit of the New York Children's Aid Society, and, directing the sale of his remaining Tribune shares, bequeathes four thousand dollars to his three sisters. For the sake of a farm over which Mr. Williams, a witness to the January, will and Mr. Greeley's former counsel, grew sentimental by picturing Miss Greeley's remorseless cruelty in driving an uncle from the home of his old age a cruelty of which Miss Greeley is incapable; for the sake of four thousand dollars to relatives who can never suffer from Miss Greeley's neglect; for the sake of a small bequest to the Children's Aid Society, which the Society can exist without and which Miss Greeley is in no way called upon to pay, if, as we conscientiously believe, charity begins at home; for this, a great man's character are made the world's scandal. In the name of journalism we protest against the disgrace. We bid the executors of the January will to beware. One of them is the publisher of the Tribune. Should he support the claim advanced by Mr. Williams his bond may be impeached, for it can be said of him that a desire to obtain possession of or to control Mr. Greeley's six shares of the Tribune stock is at the bottom of his desire to see the provisions of this will carried out. Therefore we give those executors warning to come what may, in this instance, at least, public opinion will be on the side of Mr. Greeley's lovely daughters, and we do not say those who attempt to stem its angry current. Horace Greeley's fame is national, the welfare of his children is of national interest, and again we say to the jackals fighting over the dead lion. Beyond, or beware!

In connection with the above we cite the following statement of a Washington correspondent, who is said to be accurate in his statements. If true, it throws a curious light on the mystery of the Greeley will case:

> Messrs. Sinclair and Ayer, large Tribune stockholders, desired that Schuyler Colfax should succeed Mr. Greeley as chief editor. Whitelaw Reid desired to retain his position, and with the aid of Mr. Greeley's ten shares Mr. Reid would have a majority. He succeeded in enlisting Ida on his side, and Ida rejected an offer of $100,000 for her father's shares from Mr. Colfax's supporters. Mr. Sinclair, by contesting the will, tied up the four shares, and the Sinclair side now having a majority, have notified Mr. Colfax, who has formally accepted. It is said that Mr. Colfax informed his friends on Monday that he would resign the Vice Presidency before the holidays and take charge of the Tribune. The terms are understood to be ten shares on reasonable terms and over $10,000 salary."

And an Associated Press dispatch affords the last contribution to this controversy in the shape of denials by the parties referred to:

> Mr. Sinclair, publisher of the Tribune, denies having approached Miss Greeley upon the subject of purchasing or controlling her stock in that paper, and says that neither he nor any other of the executors knew anything of the contents of Mr. Greeley's will until they went to deposit it in the Surrogate's office. Whitelaw Reid, referring to the story that he sought the influence of the stock controlled by Mr. Greeley's daughters, stated today that he made no allusion, either direct or indirect, to that stock between himself and Miss Greeley.

The Hon. Wm. A. Wheeler, of New York, who has been mentioned for the Speakership of the next House of Representatives, declines to be a candidate. The Utica (N. Y.) Herald says Mr. Blaine will be re-elected with little or no opposition.

THE FIFTH AVENUE HORROR. The facts of the loss of life by the fire at the Fifth Avenue Hotel were bad enough, but it seems that the reports exaggerated the number of victims two-fold, the actual number of persons killed being eleven, instead of twenty-two. Eight bodies still remained at the Morgue Friday, four of which had not been identified. In the event of the remaining corpses not being removed before Sunday, they are to be interred by some Temperance and Religious societies in Calvary Cemetery. The funeral of one of the victims, Mary McCabe, took place Thursday, the burial being at the expense of her only relative, a sister.

HORRIBLE CRIME. Eben Potter, residing two miles east of Columbus, O., Thursday morning, murdered his two children, aged one and three years, with a hatchet with which he had been cracking hickory nuts. He left after committing the deed, but was captured at Lancaster, and confessed the crime, without giving any reason.

OUR CONGRESSIONAL DELEGATION.

TRIBUTE FROM A PROMINENT DEMOCRAT—HOW EFFICIENTLY MAINE INTERESTS HAVE BEEN CARED FOR—CREDITABLE REPRESENTATIVE FROM THE FOURTH DISTRICT.

The following letter, from a gentleman who is thoroughly familiar with the course of Congressional legislation for many years past, is a generous tribute from a political opponent, to the ability and faithfulness of our delegation in Congress, and a specially merited recognition of the valuable services rendered by our accomplished Representative from this District:

> BOSTON, Dec. 12, 1872.
> To the Editor of the Whig and Courier:
> Hon. John A. Peters behaved with admirable tact and judgment, in what he said and did in the U. S. House of Representatives, on the recent occasion of the passage of the bill remitting duties on articles to be used in re-building the burnt district in this city. When a similar bill was passed one year ago in reference to Chicago, an amendment excepting lumber was engrafted on it in the Senate, after a hard contest; but this was done on the peculiar circumstances in that case. Conflagrations had devasted the forests of Michigan and Wisconsin, as well as Chicago. It had become necessary to haul enormous quantities of timber without delay, to save it from destruction by worms, and this timber was entitled to all the advantage in our markets, which is derived from the moderate duties on foreign lumber. No such peculiar state of facts existed in this case, and Mr. Peters doubtless saw that it would be a waste of effort, to attempt to urge an exception of lumber, against the strong disposition in Congress to do everything possible to be done, to alleviate the great calamity which overwhelmed this city on the fatal night of the 9th of last November. An exception of lumber was really of inconsiderable importance to Maine, the area of the burnt district of Boston being only one fortieth of the area of the burnt district of Chicago. Mr. Peters saw the situation and gradefully withdrew from a contest, where there was no hope of success, and where very little was to be gained, even if success had been achieved.
> No State has been better served by its delegation in Congress, in the last few years, than Maine has been.
> In the adjustment of the revenue system, at the last session, it is really wonderful that our delegation secured to us the benefit of free trade in the matter of navigation, by the remission of duties on all articles used in shipbuilding, and at the same time, maintained and even rather increased, the protective duties on our lumber, while they were being reduced upon almost everything else. This was certainly a most rare good fortune, in the lottery of legislation; but it was a good fortune which came from good management. We had the advantage of having the Speakership of the House and of vigilant, able and influential representatives in both branches of Congress, who knew what their duty was, who knew how to do it, and who did do it, in a most thorough and most successful manner. Of these matters it is not my special province to speak. But there is another matter, in reference to which it is not only my special right, but my special duty, to acknowledge the great services of the gentlemen who have represented Maine at Washington in recent years. I refer to the large allowances obtained from time to time upon claims of Maine, which arose during the war of 1812-15, and subsequently during the controversies which were terminated by the Treaty of Washington of 1842, all of them obscured and prejudiced by the lapse of time, all of them encountering virulent sectional antagonisms, and some of them arousing old party heats and feuds. The fact that such claims were at last all fairly adjusted and fairly paid, and upon a scale of magnitude which secured the success of the great enterprise of the European and North American Railway, to whose use the larger of those claims had been appropriated, is itself abundant proof of the ability and influence of the Senators and Representatives from Maine; but I could not fail specially to observe and appreciate them, during my fourteen years' of official connection with those affairs.
> Success depended upon many circumstances, the lacking of either of which would have been fatal. One of these circumstances was the possession of the Speaker's Chair, with the vast influence direct and indirect, of that position, by a man who never forgets his duty to Maine, under a pressure of nations, district, or national ambition. The Representation of the district most interested in the European and North American Railway, by just such a man as M. Peters is, was another of those circumstances. His constituents have shown their appreciation of him by successive elections, but I doubt if, after all, this appreciation is equal to his merit, in the particular of his capacity to carry votes in a legislative body. I certainly never appreciated it, until I witnessed the spectacle of his victory on one of those Maine claims, during the session of the—th, a pitched battle with the Committee of Ways and Means, who almost always carry the House, and who at that very time were riding rough-shod over everybody else.
> Your obedient servant,
> ED. M. WESTON.

THE SHORE LINE RAILROAD. The Ellsworth American, in commenting upon the reports of the meeting here last Saturday evening, strongly intimates that Ellsworth people will not be inclined to coax Bangor, and that if we are indifferent as to the terminus of the proposed railroad, the line can easily be deflected to a point below us on the river, a measure which, in fact, is strongly urged by interested parties. The American says:

> The WHIG of Monday has a strong article favoring the project, and calling upon the citizens of Bangor to give the subject serious consideration, as it is vital to their interests and worthy of their aid and encouragement.
> We are not disposed to find fault with Bangor, for the lukewarmness they have thus far shown, in this matter. Communities will generally act promptly when they see in what direction their true interests lie.
> Some of our own prominent citizens have given the project of a road to Bangor only a cold support, not from any doubt as to the advantage of a road, but from a conviction that Bangor should not be the terminus.
> They think with Gen. Boynton, that Bangor has nothing that we want, nor use anything that they want—that we should be much better accommodated by building a road, 18 miles, to Bucksport. They argue that in a short time there will be a shore road from Rockland, which could be tapped by ours—the distance to Portland shortened—a winter port secured, and our own trade and that of the East retained, increased and centered here. In addition to this, the route of the road extending down our river to sidewater would vastly better accommodate our lumbering interest, than to run up river.
> We have however voted $55,000 in aid of the road to Bangor. If it succeeds, well, otherwise nine-tenths of our citizens would favor a terminus lower down the Penobscot river.

FRAUDS IN NOVA SCOTIA. The Customs authorities of Halifax, N. S. have discovered a fraud in which several Halifax firms are implicated. A schooner was cleared at Halifax some time ago, with a cargo of bonded goods for Newfoundland. The next heard of her was that she was lost. It is now ascertained that before the loss of the vessel the cargo was transferred to another vessel which carried it to Yarmouth, where the Customs officers found it concealed and seized both vessel and cargo. They are secured in Halifax; the Underwriters refuse to pay the claims.

D. G. Croly has relinquished the position of managing editor of the N. Y. World, and is succeeded by Jerome B. Bishop.

THE [illegible] BATTLE FLAGS!

Shall they be Dishonored!

Sumner and his Constituents!

Debating a Vote of Censure!

HEARING Before the LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE!

Plain Words from Massachusetts Men!

DEBATE ON THE RESOLUTION TO CENSURE SENATOR SUMNER.

BOSTON, Dec. 13. The Committee on Federal Relations held a meeting to-day to consider resolutions introduced on leave in the House Thursday, by Mr. Hoyt of Athol, censuring the course of Senator Sumner in introducing a bill in the U.S. Senate for the removing of the names of battles with fellow citizens from the Army register and Regimental flags.

Mr. Hoyt appeared in behalf of his resolve and described Mr. Sumner's bill, which was introduced in the National Senate Dec. 2nd. [illegible] is laid upon the table and was now [illegible] in some form. The proposition was to erase from the Regimental flags the [illegible] Army list of battles in which they were engaged. If the principle was right it [illegible] a shame to keep the names on flags [illegible] State House. The proposition in effect [illegible] every man who took part in the [illegible] proposition was to reduce the [illegible] to the level of the Confederate soldier, [illegible] other deduction could be made from the [illegible] Mr. Sumner was elected by the Legislature and this resolve was the only means the [illegible] of expressing their repudiation of [illegible] proposition! He offered it in [illegible] spirit; but as a citizen and a [illegible] and thought the Legislature would do [illegible] credit in the passage of the resolution.

Mr. Nutt, a member of the House from [illegible] followed in advocacy of the resolution [illegible] said it originated with Co. Hoyt [illegible] not, as had been charged, inspired [illegible] Butler. It was only a beginning [illegible] this proposal of Sumner's and the [illegible] of tablets and the leveling of monuments would follow and such mutilated veterans as Sergeant Plunkett must be put out of [illegible].

Mr. Porter of Revere, concurred in the [illegible] of the resolution and had been [illegible] to present a similar resolution himself. [illegible] relations of those who served in the [illegible] were very strong. They endured privations for meagre pay, and had claims on the [illegible] of the country which no man [illegible] who was not in the army could appreciate. They volunteered and preformed their duty from a sense of right and was not for a man like Charles Sumner, who had only been a man of words, to say that these memories should be thrown aside. The Legislature of this State would be recreant to its duty if it failed to censure this proposition from a man who had only decried war.

In reply to a question from Mr. Smith of [illegible] Committee, Mr. Butler said he should [illegible] agree to have the Southern battle flags [illegible] the National Capitol, though he was willing [illegible] should cherish the memory of their [illegible]. Mr. Porter read an editorial from the "Richmond Enquirer," opposing the [illegible] and said he should consent it [illegible] to ask the South to forget the [illegible] of their brave men.

Mr. Thompson, of Gloucester, member of [illegible] Committee, asked whether the brave men of the South would not enlist in the army if [illegible] of battles were erased from the [illegible].

Mr. Porter said the men who really [illegible] fighting on each side were good [illegible]. It was only when the Union soldiers [illegible] into the hands of the home guards at [illegible] and elsewhere that they were [illegible]. Mr. Sumner should be discreet [illegible] favors he would show the South, as [illegible] measures of friendship were an injury [illegible], if he was friendly to the soldiers, [illegible] disgrace them as much as though he [illegible].

Mr. Hoyt in reply to Mr. Thompson said [illegible] rebellion was a crime and if the men [illegible] by the names of the battles in [illegible] they were defeated, it was the legitimate penalty of their crime. These men [illegible] have the blazonry of their infamy perpetuated to the latest generation. If the [illegible] the battle on the flag of the regular [illegible] would disgrace any man he should be [illegible]. Such men were not enlisting from [illegible] for the Government, but from mercenary motives.

Mr. Lincoln, a member of the committee [illegible] inquired whether Mr. White [illegible] not consent to a modification of the [illegible] so as to deal simply with the bill [illegible] an unprecedented measure to pass [illegible] a personal censure.

Mr. Hoyt replied that it was time to make [illegible] precedent in order to rebuke a Senator of [illegible] own election.

Mr. Porter said they should deal with the [illegible] as he was the author of the resolution [illegible] came from this State.

Mr. Lincoln did not believe in instructing [illegible] or anybody else.

Mr. Porter said the rule was that only the [illegible] Executive and the members of his Cabinet should be above instruction.

Mr. Nutt explained that the Army Register [illegible] the list of battles in which the [illegible] arms were defeated, as well as where [illegible] were victorious.

Mr. Lincoln did not want it understood [illegible] approved the course of the Senator.

Mr. Hoyt thought it would make little difference to Senator Sumner whether his name [illegible] mentioned or not, and it was an honest, [illegible] way to do it.

Mr. Richardson of the committee, said the [illegible] of the resolution was not strong [illegible] to express his personal feelings, but [illegible] they were framing the voice of the people of Massachusetts they should be careful [illegible] in the choice of words.

[illegible] closes the public hearing.

THE ELECTION.

TALLAHASSEE, Dec. 13. The State Canvassers have finished the count and give the official majority of Hart (Rep.) at 1552. The Republicans elected both members of Congress and the Lieut. Governor. They have 6 majority in the House and 2 in the Senate.

FORTY-SECOND CONGRESS—SECOND SESSION.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 13.

SENATE.

Mr. Anthony was elected President pro tem Mr. Colfax being absent for a few days.

The House bill for building six war sloops was reported from the Committee with an amendment increasing the number to ten.

A bill constructing a steam elevator in the Capital was introduced. The Boston relief bill discussed and the credentials of Mr. Sencer, Senator elect from California were presented.

Mr. Cragin from the Committee on Naval Affairs reported a substitute for the House bill to authorize six steam vessels of war. The substitute authorizes the Secretary of the Navy to construct ten steam vessels of war, of such a class of classes as he may deem most suitable to the demands of the service each to carry six or more guns of large calibre and the hull to be built of iron or wood as he may determine, provided a portion of said vessels shall be built in whole or in part in private yards upon contract with the lowest responsible bidders under the supervision of the Navy Department, or the hulls of any portion of said vessels may be built upon private contract in the navy yards with government material. Nothing is said as to the appropriation.

The Boston relief bill was taken up and after some discussion on excepting lumber from the list of materials to be entered free:

Mr. Thurman said he was not satisfied of the constitutionality of legislation of this kind and moved to refer the bill to the Committee on the Judiciary. After a long discussion the bill was referred—yeas 35 nays 15.

Mr. Wilson said that he hoped the Committee on the Judiciary would consider the bill and report as soon as possible because it was very important that the people of Boston should know what to expect.

Mr. Morton called up the bill to prescribe the manner of taking testimony in contested election cases. Passed.

At 3 40 P. M., the Senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE.

A bill was reported from Committee to examine and pay the claims of several insurance companies for the loss of the bark Caldera. A resolution was adopted calling on the Postmaster General for information concerning the postal cards and the present contract for postage stamps. Several private bills from the Committe on Patents were reported.

The House went into a committee on the private calendar and considered the bill to reimburse the College of William and Mary $65,000, for property destroyed during the rebellion, which after discussion and amendment was rejected, yeas 30 nays 126.

The House then took up and concurred in the Senate amendments to the bill abolishing Assessors of Internal Revenue, excepting that appointing 25 Treasury agents, which was rejected and conferees appointed.

The House at 4.10 adjourned, the session to morrow being restricted to general debate.

LOUISIANA.

GREAT EXCITEMENT.

NEW YORK, Dec, 12. The Times' New Orleans dispatch says that nothing but the presence of United States troops prevents an outbreak.

WARMOUTH INTERVIEWED.

Gov. Warmouth said to the Herald's New Orleans correspondent last night that it would be impossible to pass or execute any laws in the face of Attorney-General Williams' despatch. Still, for self-preservation, the people must keep his Legislature together until the facts could be laid before Congress.

THE KELLOGG PARTY

are jubilant, claiming that their victory is complete. They claim to have a positive assurance from Washington that the Supreme Court will certainly refuse the writ of prohibition. While public sentiment grows more bitter, it now appears as if an outbreak will be averted.

GOING HOME

The fusion Legislature has adjourned till the first Monday in January.

FROM WASHINGTON.

THE PRESIDENT'S SALARY.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13. The House Judiciary Committee have reported a bill increasing the President's salary to $50,000.

LOUISIANA AFFAIRS.

The Cabinet session to-day was not of unusual interest, affairs in New Orleans were spoken of and the latest telegram to the President and Attorney General were read but not with a view of further official action as the full determination of the government has heretofore been manifested. The Attorney General telegraphed to Col. McEnery that the visit to the President contemplated by the citizens of New Orleans would avail nothing.

VICE-PRESIDENT COLFAX

left last night for New York to meet to-day the stockholders of the New York Tribune.

THE CREDIT MOBILIER.

It is reported that some interesting disclosures came out in the examination of Col. McComb by the Credit Mobilier Committee to-day. It is also reported and not denied that Speaker Blaine yesterday told the Committee that he had been offered some of the stock by Oakes Ames as a matter of purchase but that the offer was declined.

WILMINGTON, Dec. 13. Yesterday, during a gale, five pilots, Jos. Bersil, Thomas W. Brinkman, Jno. T. Rant, Robert Saint, and George and James Bellaas left Smithville in a pilot boat to board three vessels in the offing, and their friends anxiously watched their progress. After getting well to sea the pilot boat suddenly disappeared, and nothing has been heard of it since. Two of the vessels reached the city last night and reported having seen nothing of the pilots. They may have been saved by the other vessel, but their friends and relatives entertain no hope of their safety.

THE THOMAS CONCERT. One of the finest audiences of the season filled Norombega Hall last evening on the occasion of the concert by Theodore Thomas' great orchestra, and the concert proved, as was anticipated, one of the very finest musical entertainments ever given in Bangor. It is of course unnecessary to speak in detail of the wonderful perfection which this organization has attained in the rendition of music of every class and school. The programme last evening was admirably adapted to display this, containing, as it did, the best music and the most popular, the classical and the "music of the future," so that the devotees of every school found something to admire. Music long familiar to us gains a new charm and coloring under the baton of Mr. Thomas, as, for example, the much abused overture to "Oberon," which opened the entertainment, was interpreted as few have heard it before. Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony, given entire for the first time here, was received like a new revelation, and the audience sat spellbound as its beauties unfolded themselves. The selections from the first act of Wagner's "Lohengrin" were played in the true spirit of the composer and well illustrated his peculiar style. Strauss' witching "Artist Life" set hundreds of heads in involuntary motion and the quaint "Amaryllis" was in charming contrast with the spirited and characteristic "Rakoczy March," by Liszt, which closed the concert. Mr. Lockwood's harp solo, "La danse des fees," displayed great technical skill as well as taste, and received a deserved encore.

Mr. George L. Osgood, who made his first appearance here last evening, sang Schubert's famous "Serenade" and Franz's "Slumber Song," (op. 1, No. 10,) the words English, by himself. He was recalled three times, and responded with "Ask me not how much I love thee," and a German song in similar style. He has a fine, sympathetic voice, cultivated to a high degree, but evidently prefers such selections as display the most quiet and refined, rather than the brilliant phases of his artistic skill.

We are sure the apparent coldness of the audience was by no means to be attributed to a lack of appreciation of the orchestral numbers, [illegible]

[illegible] Thomas will not visit our people [illegible]

clative, if they were not quite so demonstrative as many of his audiences, and we can assure him of a warm welcome when he next returns to "Down East."

DEATH OF EDWIN FORREST.

Dispatches from Philadelphia state that on Thursday morning at half-past 10 o'clock, Edwin Forrest was found by his servant in a dying condition. He not appearing at his usual hour at the breakfast table had excited the anxiety of the household, and repairing to his room they discovered him lying on the bed gasping for breath and struggling for life with all the power of his usual vitality. Physicians were at once summoned to his bedside and every appliance was used for his relief, but in half an hour from the discovery of his illness the great American Tragedian was dead. It was Mr. Forrest's habit daily to exercise with dumb bells in the morning before breakfast, and he had been engaged in his customary exercise when he was seized with an apoplectic fit. His neck-tie was partially adjusted and he had otherwise completed dressing for the day. When the news was spread throughout his native city, numbers of his friends flocked to his residence at the corner of Broad and Maders streets, and Mr. Forrest's bed room was soon thronged. It is understood that the deceased leaves no surviving relatives. It is reported that he left no will but this is highly improbable, as he is known to have been very precise and careful in the conduct of his legal affairs and could hardly have neglected so important a matter. He is supposed to have owned considerable property in New York, and to have been a large holder of United States securities. No arrangement had yet been made for the funeral, but the death of the Nestor of the American Drama will doubtless bring together a vast concourse of its representatives from all parts of the Union.

The Philadelphia Telegraph says that Mr. Forrest was apparently in excellent health Wednesday night, and gave no external signs of his speedy dissolution. He wrote his letters by himself, among his books in his study, and retired early. At about half-past eight Thursday morning his old housekeeper rang the bell to summon him to breakfast, and after waiting some time for his appearance, went up to the room and rapped on the door. The only response was a groan. She entered and found Mr. Forrest lying across the bed, completely dressed for breakfast, save his coat, and with his feet resting upon the floor. The housekeeper asked: "Are you sick, Mr. Forrest?" He moved his lips, but could not utter a word. The housekeeper called her sister to summon aid while she bathed the dying man's face. Just as aid arrived the pallor of death covered the face of the tragedian, and his spirit took its flight. His death occurred only a few minutes before 9 o'clock. A number of neighbors were called in, the sad offices to the dead were commenced and telegrams were sent to New York and Boston to summon his friends. Mr. Forrest was born in Philadelphia in 1806, and commenced his histrionic career at the early age of twelve years, in the old South Street Theatre in that city.

THE BOSTON RELIEF BILL. We copy from the Congressional Globe the following remarks of Messrs. Peters and Lynch, on the bill granting a remission of duties on materials to be used in rebuilding the burned-over district of Boston:—

Mr. PETERS. Mr. Speaker, lumber is not excepted from this bill as it was in the bill for the relief of Chicago, and without that exception it will probably affect the district which I represent more directly than any part of the country. Bangor furnishes mostly that product of lumber. The city of Bangor through her insurance suffers in this fire to the extent of about $600,000, and the Boston Daily Advertiser in commenting on the subject states that Bangor in its loss in Boston received as much shock in proportion to moneyed capital as even the city of Boston itself; but inasmuch as this House has generously stood by her on the question of tariff on lumber heretofore, I am willing to vote for the bill as it is, with lumber included.

* * * * * *

Mr. LYNCH. I would ask the gentlemen if my statement is not correct, that the loss has fallen upon the Boston merchants rather than upon the real estate owners? I undertake to say that the loss by fire to the city of Bangor, represented by my colleague, [Mr. PETERS,] has been greater than the loss of the real estate owners of Boston, because their losses were either covered by insurance or by the increased value of their lands.

TRIBUTE TO JUDGE NELSON. The following letter was addressed to the venerable Judge Nelson by his associates on the the U. S. Supreme Bench in reply to his letter of resignation:—

SUPREME COURT OF UNITED STATES,
WASHINGTON, Dec. 9, 1872.

Dear Brother:—We have received with deep sensibility your letter announcing your resignation of the post you have so long and so worthily filled. We greatly regret that we are no more to have the benefit of your long experience, native wisdom and large learning in conferences, and that the profession and the country must lose the fruits of them in the decisions of the court. You carry with you in your retirement a reverent and universal affection given to few men. The bar are unanimous in their eulogies and we, your brethren of the bench, are not behind the bar in our sense of your great services, your sterling integrity and your constant benevolence. May our Father in Heaven give you many days in which to enjoy the affections of the family, friends and countrymen which cluster around you. Yours faithfully.

Signed by the Chief Justice and Associate Justices.

The designs are furnished by Shutz and the material is of native granite from the battle-field.

The N. Y. Herald's Washington correspondent does not relish the exclusion of reporters from the Credit Mobilier investigation, and resents it by intimating that the Committee are more anxious for privacy than for facts. The writer says:

There seems to be but one gentleman really anxious for a strict investigation. It is Speaker Blaine. He apparently has nothing to fear from an impartial scrutiny of the Credit Mobilier transactions. The members of the House who are alleged to be connected with this infamous business say that they are ready to prove their guiltlessness.

A dispatch from Columbia, S. C., says that J. J. Patterson Senator-elect who was arrested by Justice Kirk on the affidavit of Assemblyman Miller, was immediately discharged on bail, since which Justice Kirk has been removed by a unanimous vote of the Legislature and Assemblyman Miller has disappeared in consequence of a warrant being out against him for perjury.

GET THE GENUINE ARTICLE. The great popularity of "Wilbor's Compound of Cod Liver Oil and Lime" has induced some unprincipled persons to attempt to palm off a simple article of their own manufacture; but any person who is suffering from Coughs, Colds, or Consumption should be careful where they purchase this article. It requires no puffing; the results following its use are its best recommendations, and the proprietor has ample evidence on file of its extraordinary success in pulmonary complaints. The phosphate of lime possesses a most marvelous healing power, as combined with the pure Cod Liver Oil by Dr. Wilbor. This medicine is regularly prescribed by the medical faculty For sale by A. B. WILBOR, Chemist, 166 Court St. Boston.

When the body and brain are well balanced, the stomach is capable of restoring the waste from which the system is constantly suffering; but when the brain is large in proportion, the stomach is incapable of supplying it; in other words, the expenditure is too large for the income. Here lies the cause of so much suffering from Disease of the Heart, Liver, Stomach and Lungs, which is produced by taxing the Nervous System too severely; and Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is the only preparation known which imparts this vitality directly, and consequently the power to overcome disease.

PROGRESS OF THE REVOLUTION.—A new light dawned upon the world with the introduction of PLANTATION BITTERS twelve years ago. Drastic purgation went but—restoration and renovation came in. The eyes of the people were opened to the great fact that the way to cure diseaseis to strengthen and support its victims, not to place them at its mercy by depriving them of the little strength they have. It soon becomes evident that as a means of infusing vitality into the feeble system, regulating the secretions, curing indigestion and reforming a bilious habit of body, no medicinal preparation then known was all comparable to the new restorative.—Since then hundreds of attempts have been made to rival the Bitters. They have all failed, and the GRAND REVOLUTION IN MEDICAL TREATMENT, which was commenced in 1860, is still in progress. Nothing can stop it, for it is founded on the principles, now universally acknowledged, that the physical vigor is the most formidable antagonist of all human ailments, and experiences has shown that PLANTATION BITTERS is a peerless invigorant, as well as the best possible safeguard against epidemic diseases.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Persons leading sedentary lives will find, in Holloway's Pills the best substitute for exercise which science can supply, and in his Ointment a remedy for all cancerous diseases. The Henry F. Miller Piano.

It is now less than ten years since Mr. Henry F. Miller established his piano-forte manufactory, and in that time these instruments have advanced to a most prominent position, their unusual merits gaining for them favor throughout the country. The Henry F. Miller piano-fortes combine every quality that renders such an instrument desirable. Artists speak enthusiastically of the clear, brilliant and powerful tones; public institutions favor them on account of their great durability. No instrument could endure so triumphantly the severe tests to which the Henry F. Miller pianos have been exposed, unless it was thoroughly well made. The Henry F. Miller pianos are in daily use in the New England Conservatory of Music, and in other local and foreign institutions of a similar character; and the high estimation in which they are generally held is attested by the award to Mr. Miller of the contract to furnish instruments to the public schools of this city. At their first introduction to the public, these pianos immediately secured a recognition as first class in every respect, and on this basis a large business has been built up and is steadily advancing, the instruments more than sustaining their reputation and increasing in favor as they become more widely known. The Henry F. Miller pianos are now scattered throughout the country in private residences and in public institutions, everywhere speaking for themselves in their own magnificent tones.

A SCENE FOR A STUDY.

BY JEAN INGELOW.

Where lay the snow over roof, over weld—
Where hung the moon in the fir sky sky—
As I huddled sheep that crouched in the fold
Were the white evehant thoughts dropped from on high.

But a little window, rustic and old,
Gleamed cheerily out to the wanderers nigh.

A painter passed on his way that night;
"What a scene for a study," the painter said:
Every gronmers that ruddy light,
On the fringe it from eaves overhead:
Oh soul, Oh art glad city! O world thou art white!
I'll look in at the window all warm and red."

So he looked—but whatever his eye might see
His pencil told not; his lips were dumb.
I might guess, but who would listen to me?
And the days of the painter have told their sum.
Would ye know, you must wait till your souls flies
And you two meet in the world to come.

Here is the study the painter wrought;
A little way off the winter glows,
And the priest of children's feet are brought
Up to the doorway, athwart the snows.
And the resonance flails like an afterthought,
As I silvers their pathway who now suppose.

[illegible] shows the world and the sky room about,
And warm breaks that ruddy light by, wasn't
If the painter's thought I need not doubt,
For long after his study has had be to
Ah, me! time but it was to walk without.
From the one light apart, in a wintery scene.

But I hope, where the white flakes freezeno more,
Those, where winter is over and gone,
For the outlet of the night that went before
He shall forget by whom he made his moan;
And almost forgets how they closed the door
As I listened him to walk in the world—alone.

THE PRETTY WIDOW.

THE FINEST SONGSTRESS IN THE BLUE GRASS REGION—A WIDOW WHO LAUGHED GOOD TASTE.

It was customary in former days for all the ladies of the best families to attend the prominent barbecues, and this was especially true in the case in the contest between Mr. Breckinridge and General Coombs, in 1849. Out of the social affairs grew like anachronistic story of the finest walk in the blue-grass region. Not far from the Forks of Elkhorn lived the pretty widow Fauntleroy, and one of her nearest neighbors was General Peyton. The General had looked upon the little widow very much as he looked upon his blooded horse, Powhatan, "the finest horse in the Blue-grass region."

The pretty Mrs. Fauntleroy had been a widow more than a year, while the General, having a great regard for etiquette, had patiently waited for that time to elapse, in order to declare himself. But she, with her husband's estate, kept her love at bay, and kept him at her train. He had escorted her to balls, barbecue, and when returning had expressed his satisfaction at the prospects of a general victory in the approaching Whig politics. The widow took sides with the Democracy, and offered to wager her blooded saddle horse, copsy, or anything else on her place, against Powhatan, or anything else she might fancy on the General's place. The General's gallantry would not allow him to refuse the wager, and he promptly accepted. During the time they had reached the north fork of Elkhorn, and were about to ford it (horses were not plenty in those days), when Peyton, the General's only son and heir, rode up at a sharp gait behind them.

The widow turned and bowed to John, and rode into the stream, but a little behind her companion. The water was very deep, and required the horses to put forth all their strength to reach the top with their loads.—As luck would have it, good or ill, the widow's rein broke when just at the commencement of the steep part. The lady, still seated on her saddle, slid swiftly back into the river, while her horse went up the bank like a deer. John Peyton leaped from his horse, and in an instant was standing by the lady's saddle, and before the General had recovered from his astonishment was at the top of the bank with his burden. The little widow was equal to the occasion, for she begged the General to ride on and stop her horse, which had now begun to understand his part in the affair, and was now beginning to increase the gait at each bound.

The General did as he was bid, and soon returned with the horse. In the meantime John Peyton had secured his own horse, and when the General came back with the two mares he she and John were laughing incessantly over the ridiculous accident, but what further passed between them is only known to themselves. John Peyton repaired the bridle with, listened the saddle girth, and the horses passed the lady and her self-made her good evening, mounted his horse, and rode another road down the Elkhorn, ride rapidly home, leaving the General to escort the widow. It is not necessary to relate how he entertained his fair companion with his powerful anecdotes of Mr. Clay and other famous public men; but, when he reached the Fauntleroy Place, he accepted the lady's invitation to dismount and take tea with her.

After having changed her wet clothes, the pretty widow entertained her guest with her richest smiles and songs, and by supper the General was delighted, and expressed a decided as Kentucky gentleman in the day would do. You are the finest songstress, indeed, in the blue-grass region." Then he bade her good night, and shook hands on the porch, the wicked little widow gave his hand a little squeeze, only a little, but it thrilled like an electric shock through his great, ponderous frame, while she laughingly reminded him of his wager. That night in his dreams, the little widow Fauntleroy was repeated so often and in so many lovely attitudes, that he resolved to propose to her at their next meeting, now did he dream of being refused. The next morning a letter from his tobacco factor called Gen. Peyton to Louisville, and before his return the general contest in Ashland district was over, and wonderful to relate, John C. Breckinridge, the young Democrat, was elected to Congress.

General Peyton was both astonished and pleased. "Mr. Clay's district, sir, the finest congressional district in the blue-grass region has disgraced itself, sir," was almost the first remark to his neighbor, Colonel Bean or.

On his son, John, he communicated the intention of bringing Mrs. Fauntleroy home on the head of the table.

"You will find the finest lady in the blue grass region, and I hope, sir, you will always respect your future mother."

John, with a quiet smile, assured him that he was pleased with his choice. The pleased the General highly, for he had been a little afraid John would object to a step mother younger than himself. The next morning the General ordered Powhattan brought out, and he drove to Mrs. Fauntleroy's. Calling John, he requested him to call upon Mrs. Fauntleroy."

The Whig party had disgraced itself in Mr. Clay's district, sir, and I am compelled to part with the finest blooded horse in the state to pay a wager, with that lady sir."

"What a scene for a study," the painter said:
Every gronmers that ruddy light,
On the fringe it from eaves overhead:
Oh soul, Oh art glad city! O world thou art white!
I'll look in at the window all warm and red."

A ROMANCE OF THE ROTHSCHILDS.—The very uppermost circles of society in London are agitated by the report of the imminence of an extremely unusual and startling event.

A daughter of the Rothschilds is about to be married to a poor man—and this poor man is a Christian! The young lady who is thus to break with the traditions of her family and disregard the teachings of her religion is the eldest daughter of Sir Anthony Rothschild, and the man upon whom she is resolved to bestow her fortune and her name is the Hon. Mr. Yorke, a son of the earl of Hardwicke. It hasten to nip in the bud all sympathy with which this news may be received by members of the society for the propagation of the gospel among the Jews by adding that Miss Rothschild is not going to embrace Christianity nor to renounce her own religion. She will remain a Jewess, and her husband will continue to be at least nominally a Christian. The disapproval with which the aged and excellent baronet, her father, regards the match is said to be increased by his failure to discover in his prospective beau the slightest modification of head or heart which could justify or even excuse what he regards as infatuation. Indeed, less than it must of necessity be that he is not in love with "Z. Todd."
